Jessy's mother was a farmer and her father was a lame man and he could not walk.

One day, her mother sent her to the market to go and sell the ready pumpkins in order to get money for the family. So Jessy decided to go and sell the pumpkins. The market was 9km from their home. On her way after walking 5km, she met two men in black. The men told her, "Hello little girl, what are you carrying on your head?" she replied, these are my mother's pumpkins, I am going to the market and sell them. The men said, ohh can we have a look? she replied yes you can. She put the basket down for the men to have a look. Immediately after putting the basket down, the men carried it up and run away. She tried to chase them but she could not catch them because they were running so fast. She stopped and sat on to the big rock and she started crying. While she was still crying, an old woman came towards her and she said, "Hello little pretty girl, what is the matter my dear?"
